

LYLE ELDRIDGE SAVES COUPLE FROM DROWNING

Mr. and Mrs. J. Duffy Are Rescued When Ice Breaks

When the ice on the channel over which they were skating broke, Lyle Eldridge, 27, James Duffy, 26, and Mrs. Duffy, 20, employees at Paschen-dale Farm, near Antioch, narrowly escaped death when they slipped helplessly into the cold water below Tuesday night at 8:30.

Eldridge Rescues Couple

It was only through heroic efforts of Eldridge, who managed to keep his head above water by clinching the ice crust, that the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Duffy were saved. When the rescuer started sinking, the flashlight he was carrying to light the way for the trio fell out of his hand and dropped to the bottom of the channel, an approximate distance of 20 feet, landing in such a position that the light enabled Eldridge to see Duffy lying on his back on the bed of the channel with his arms outstretched. Realizing that the fate of his companions depended upon him, Eldridge, without delay, but only as the result of strenuous efforts, succeeded in pulling himself out of the channel after which he dove down and brought Mrs. Duffy to the surface. Then he again thrust himself into the water and dragged Duffy, who had been fighting desperately for his life, to safety.

Trio Is Dazed

Suffering from exhaust, the severe cold, and the shock, all three of the victims were in a dazed state. Knowing of no other way to escape the terrible circumstances in which they found themselves, with skates on and clothes frozen, they started tottering toward a light which they could see in the distance, not even being able to determine whose it was.

Mrs. Duffy Faints

After they had gone about half way, Mrs. Duffy fell to the ground totally exhausted, making it doubly difficult for the men to reach their destination in that they had to carry her the remaining portion of the half mile. When the victims arrived on the porch of the John Palmer home, all collapsed within a few minutes of where they had seen the light, they each other and were taken into the house by the Palmers who went to the porch to make investigation into the racket they had heard.

Physician Called

Fearing that resuscitation was necessary, the Palmers immediately sent some one after the Antioch Fire Department, and then called Dr. Williams. Upon arriving he found that the victims were suffering only from cold, exhaustion, and shock. Before he left the house, Mr. and Mrs. Duffy had almost completely recovered, but Eldridge was still weak and partially dazed due to the fact that he had put forth such strenuous efforts to rescue his companions. They were taken to their homes that night.

OLD FASHIONED MOTHER TO BE PRESENTED WITH ALL HOME TALENT CAST

Popular Play Will Be Staged at High School on December 16

"An Old Fashioned Mother", a drama in four acts, will be presented at the Antioch high school auditorium Monday night, December 16. The play is sponsored by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church and a cast of twelve, all home talent, will take part in the presentation. Spec- 10

Mrs. Walter Freeman, Richmond, Ill., have the leading role of the old fashioned mother, a part she has played several times. The play has been over big wherever presented and the advance sale of tickets here indicates that a large crowd will witness the production.

Here's a Feminine David Harum

In these days of modern careers for women, who go in for interior deco- rating, bridge building, aviation and taxi driving, there is one ultra-modern girl in San Francisco who has made a success of an old, old trade. She is Miss Blanche Spillman, petite Belgian miss, who has succeeded at horse trading. She is shown here at work in her stable standing up a saddle.

THRONES SEE NEW, UNUSUAL FEATURES OF LIVESTOCK SHOW

Newest Discoveries Are Being Set Forth in Chicago

New and unusual features mark the 30th edition of Chicago's fur- famed live stock and crop show, the International Live Stock Exposition. The drama and pagentry of Na- ture are being ingeniously resorted to in the production of this year's "In- ternational", which, on November 30, opened its doors at the entrance to the largest live stock mart in ex- istence, the Chicago Union Stock Yard, for 30 years its home.

Entertains and Instructs

The humanizing partnership of man and Nature towards upbuilding one of the largest and most universal in- dustries is vividly and romantically described at every turn of the visitor through the vast extent of this tre- mendous exhibition of rural progress. It is an entertaining teacher, farm and industrial leaders unite in declar- ing. It is a lesson that is profitable as well as interesting for the man and woman on the farm. It sets forth the newest discoveries and de- velopments in their sphere of life, but it is no less interesting, and even more fascinating to the city pent lay- man. The animals themselves hold a strong appeal for him: They stand for the out-doors, and the inborn feeling of friendliness and comradeship for domestic beasts, acquired through ages of contact and even worship for them, is not slow to be revived.

Thrones for Champions

The "International" is referred to as a coremony where the best spec- imes of horses, cattle, sheep, and swine are each year crowned kings and queens of their respective kinds. This year that figure of speech has been put to actual practice, accord- ing to exposition officials.

They are showing elaborate display of champions of all the fat classes of cattle, sheep, and swine. Actual "thrones" have been constructed and the top-place winners are to be "spot- lighted" to the public view by this means. Specially built, elevated stalls have been made to accommo- date the champion animals. The en- throneed champions of the 1929 Inter- national will, no doubt, increase the interest and effectiveness of the show for everyone.

Sparkling Horse shows each night, abounding in the thrill of equine per- fection in its best dress, are attract- ing thousands. Practically all of the famous names known to horse show circles are on exhibition.

Dan Dupre, Delavan, Wis., spent from Wednesday until Sunday at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. D. A. Williams.

CITY BRIEFS

Otto Waldman, formerly of Antioch and now of Grayslake, is in St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, suffer- ing from a broken hip which he sus- tained when he fell from the roof of his home Monday.

Dr. G. W. Jensen attended a veteri- narians' convention at Chicago on Tuesday.

Robert Wilson has accepted a posi- tion in the Chicago post office.

C. L. Kuttl took 20 of his ag boys to the International Livestock show in Chicago Monday.

Homor Edwards is attending the National 4-H Live Stock exposition in Chicago this week.

Howard Gaston returned to his home here Thanksgiving day after having spent a year in Florida play- ing with Charley Prector's orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Peters and Mr. and Mrs. S. Boyer Nelson were in Chicago Wednesday.

Sanford Clark Is Overcome By Monoxide Gas

Sanford Clark, foreman of the Wet- zel Chevrolet Sales, was found lying on the basement floor of the garage, overcome with monoxide gas, Sat- urday night at 5 o'clock. He was not in an unconscious state, however, and he believed the cause for his being so an unconscious state, however, and it affected was the fact that he was raised during the war.

His fellow workmen report that he had been working in the basement about 20 minutes prior to his being found. He was taken immediately to his home on Ida avenue, where every effort was made to fill his lungs with oxygen. Clark has recovered sufficiently to be back "on the job" again.

THREE SECTIONS

IN NEWS TODAY
Today's edition of the Antioch News comes to you in three sec- tions, sixteen pages. In addition to the regular news section and the punch magazine section, read- ers will find an interesting section of four pages devoted to a busi- ness and industrial review of Wan- kegan, county seat of Lake county and one of the leading north shore cities.

It is believed that the honest merchant who has commodities of value to offer the buying public will benefit through advertising in a medium that reaches nearly ten thousand readers every week. The Waukegan firms have bought space in the News that they may invite your business, because ad- vertising in western Lake county is a good proposition. Seemingly they very considerably lost sight of the fact that the newspaper profits from their patronage, and seemed only cognizant of the fact that they wisely invested in a recognized modern necessity — the third largest business in the world—advertising.

POULTRY EXHIBITION PROSPECTS ARE GOOD, KUTIL ANNOUNCES

Is Well Supported; Space
For Advertising Sells Rapidly

"Never have prospects for a bigger show of high quality been better", stated C. L. Kuttl, secretary of the Antioch-Lake Villa Poultry associa- tion, today in commenting upon the entries which have already been re- ceived for the annual poultry exhibi- tion to be featured here December 19, 20, and 21.

Is Strongly Supported

This three day showing of prize standard bred poultry from the Cen- tral States, Metropolitan area is strongly supported not only by local business men, but also by interests from this entire territory. Entries have already been received from as far south as Berwyn, Ill., and as far north as Elkhorn, Wis., according to Secretary Kuttl. Three field men of the association are out in this region and it is hoped that when Judge Wm. Halbach begins judging on the morn- ing of the 20th, he will have a full day's work ahead of him.

Advertising Space Sells Fast

Advertising space at the poultry show is being grabbed up so rapidly that it is estimated that all available space will have been reserved by commercial institutions within the next few days.

Inasmuch as the show is a com- munity enterprise, sponsored by and for the residents of this region, directors have decided that no admis- sion charge will be made.

Chicken Jamboree To Be Featured

Chickens will be dropped from the highest point of the high school roof into the crowd below on Saturday af- ternoon, December 21, at 2 o'clock, to become the property of those who succeed in catching them.

Business Club Will Meet and Dine at Depner's Monday Night

The Antioch Business club will meet Monday night at 6:45 at Mike Depner's Cafe, Secretary J. C. James announced today. This will be the regular monthly meeting of the club. Much important business will come before the club, James said.

ANTIOCH IS ON THRESHOLD OF GREAT DEVELOPMENT, SAYS CAPTAIN ED DAYTON

Promoter Points Out Work to Be Done for Progress, Growth

LAUDS ANTIOCH AS BEST SMALL TOWN IN U. S.

By Captain Edward Dayton

It has been well said that a com- munity is best judged by the manner in which it entertains its guests.

It has also been wisely proclaimed that if the old home town must be "knocked", a native should deliver the verbal wallop, while the stranger within the gates, if he be wise, must always boost. Therefore, the writer, proceeding in his humble way, not as a native son, will attempt to say something of a critically construc- tive nature.

Calls Antioch Best in U. S.

Antioch, Illinois, is in my opinion the best town of its size in the United States, made so largely by the pioneer citizens and business men of the "old school" who have, or are, passing into that inevitable re- tirement, voluntary or otherwise.

Is the younger generation holding its own in the matter of community development? Are the young men and women organizing to keep Anti- och on the map? Are the bankers, professional men, merchants and farmers organizing to combat the terrific trade competition of the present day? If you'll permit me to supply the answer, I'll say "No".

Packed House Greet Rotnour Players in Opening Performance

Monte Blue Tells Antioch People About Hollywood

A crowded house greeted J. B. Rot- nour and his popular players at the Crystal Tuesday night when the company presented "The Masked Stranger" as the opening play of the spoken drama on the local stage. An- tioch, "J. B." announced, is one of a seven-town circuit he has arranged for presentation of plays each week during the season.

Snappy vandyville between the acts, and the presentation of Monte Blue, screen star, were added fea- tures. Blue, a guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Paschen at Paschen- dale farm, explained his work at Hollywood in an entertaining man- ner, talking for half an hour. Seven- teen years ago, according to Monte, he arrived in Hollywood with a pair of overalls, a bar of soap and ten cents in hard cash. There he landed a pick and shovel job with D. W. Grif- fith, producer of some of the world's greatest pictures. Soon he graduated from the labor job and was given work as an actor, filling in here and there as an extra at a salary of ten dollars a week. For several years he was a stunt man, doubling for the stars in the filming where there was an element of danger. Throwing of snubbing for others, Monte demanded better opportunities and got what he wanted. Today — well everybody knows Monte Blue.

The big crowd thoroughly enjoyed the show, the play was entertaining, and the comic antics of Billy, Tom Brown and the other vaudevillians between acts were mirth provoking.

Manager Fred B. Swanson of the Crystal was especially well pleased with the opening performance and predicts a great season here for Mr. Rotnour and his players.

FIRE BREAKS OUT ON HARDWARE STORE ROOF

Responding to an alarm sounded by Alfred Reynolds, the Silver Lake Fire department was called to Wilmet- to aid in the extinction of a fire which had broke out on McDougall's Hardware store roof Monday morn- ing. Local men, however, had the fire under control before the depart- ment arrived at the scene of the trouble.

Hevo the congested condition on the streets due to the great tourist traf- fic during the summer season?

Army Captain Likes Antioch; Offers Constructive Criticism

Today The Antioch News is in- debted to Captain Edward Dayton, who contributed the accompany- ing article, which he admits is "critically constructive".

The views and opinions of non- residents are always interesting, and so readers will find Captain Dayton's article today regarding the theme of the community mes- sage, "The Standard of Living", printed on the first page of the magazine section. The writer is a man of very broad experience and he speaks words of wisdom in his message.

It was Captain Dayton who re- cruited Company M, 4th Wisconsin Infantry, in 1917. Forty of his men were aboard the Tuscania, when the transport was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland, Feb. 17, 1918. One Kenosha man was lost. Captain Dayton and other mem- bers of the company were follow- ing on the British steamer Orduna. Dayton spent a year and a half in England, France and Germany dur- ing the war. Since the armistice Captain Dayton and his brother, Fred, have interested themselves in premonetary work, having been responsible for the building of the Hotel Dayton, and the Orpheum theatre in Kenosha. In Antioch their work has progressed to a stage where the town is assured of a fine new hotel and theatre building that when completed will represent an investment of a quarter of a million dollars.

MACHINE AND TOOL WORKS TO OPERATE IN CORONA PLANT

Company Will Design and Make Tools, Dies and Machinery

Lease of the Corona pen factory building and a part of the equipment was effected a few days ago and a new concern, the Antioch Machine & Tool company, headed by Carl Bruckman, is expected to be actively in the business of designing and manufacturing special machinery, dies and tools within a few weeks. It was announced by Mr. Bruckman yesterday. The plan for utilizing the building and equipment, which has been idle for many months, was ad- vanced by Mr. Bruckman, and recently he announced he had been offered manufacturing contracts by several large concerns, among them the Johnson Outboard Motor company and the Western Electric company. These contracts from big and reput- able firms will assure a constant sup- ply of work that can be turned out at a profit and keep the factory run- ning to capacity at all times, accord- ing to Mr. Bruckman.

Bruckman, superintendent of the Corona plant until it closed some months ago, has been head of the machine and die department for the Johnson Motor company in Wauke- gan.

He was named president of the new company here. A force of 15 to 20 experienced machinists and several apprentices will be employed in the factory here from the start, it was an- nounced.

SUPERVISORS SEEK STATE CHARGE FOR GRASS LAKE ROAD

County Board Faces Prospect of Quiet Session—
Convenes Dec. 10

Supervisor Wm. A. Rosling's high- way committee is in conference today in the office of R. M. Lobdell, county superintendent of highways, where the project of bringing the Grass Lake road under state aid is being discussed with a view of bringing it before the supervisor board when it convenes December 10.

An unusually quiet session is in prospect for the supervisors when they meet next Tuesday.

The chief topic of discussion, Road Superintendent R. M. Lobdell's $1,250,000 road bond plan, will in all likelihood be postponed until the num- ber of impending injunctions against the gas tax are settled. The money required to carry out the 50-mile pay- ing project is expected to come en- tirely from the county's share of the gas tax, but since the money will be tied up until the courts settle the in- junction suits against depaupering the tax money in the state treasury, any action by the board of supervisors would be premature.

$2,000 WORTH OF GOODS IS STOLEN FROM COTTAGES

Following investigation launched into the thefts of furniture and house- hold goods from six cottages on Chan- nel lake by Sheriff Doolittle, it was determined that the loss to property owners amounted to about $2,000.

The cottages looted belonged to Chicagoans in all instances. They were: Dr. Fred D. Hollenbeck, At- torney George Basta, William Bunge, A. L. Smith, John Carlson, and John Statman. As the cottages had been closed for the season a large part of the valuable articles had been re- moved to Chicago or to storage houses near the lake. Quantities of bedding and some sport clothing had been left in each of the summer homes, however.

Due to the fact that no one discov- ered the Channel lake burglaries un- til some time after the crime the hope of apprehending the thieves was injured to a large extent.

KEEPING OUR MONEY AT HOME

By George E. Orr

IN THE RAW YOUNG DAYS of our pioneer ancestors every item of equipment necessary for existence had to be either carried in or rudely fashioned on the spot.

Adequate supply of pure water, wild animals fit for human food and materials abundantly available made possible the original settlement of what is now the United States.

Picture this: In the late afternoon of a warm spring day a pack-train comes doggedly drifting into a sheltered valley. Women and children, babies and animals, some of the latter loaded to capacity with deftly packed aggregates. The men, armed, alert and watchful.

The Nucleus Of A City. Finding conditions suitable and to their liking, these people decide to settle here.

Nathaniel Carpenter sees plenty of raw lumber growing conveniently close and visualizes ample and profitable employment for himself and his sons . . . if only they had tools with which to work.

With Ebenezer Smith, a skilled worker in iron, he talks the situation over. Ebenezer says, "Yea, Nathaniel, truly I could fashion and temper tools for thee . . . had I the iron."

And one day some boys prowling over near-by hills, bring home a reddish nodular and excessively heavy piece of stone which the Schoolmaster promptly identifies as Iron Ore.

Then in truth, Industry awakens in our village!

In his splendid book, THE KENTUCKY RIFLE, Captain John G. W. Dillen says on page 29:

"At Old Shady, over the mountains about fifteen miles from Mr. Whitesides' saw mill on Smith's Creek, there was an iron mine and smelter, worked by three or four men. The ore was smelted in a charcoal furnace and run into chunks of suitable size for ready handling and drawn out on a big anvil with a trip hammer into rods, bars and such shapes as local smiths demanded, and then peddled around and sold to them. It was good iron and it worked fine."

Development of our vast Lead Industry started with pioneers' urgent need for BULLETS—and they made their own gun-powder too.

Spinning and weaving. Candles and Soap. Tanning. Cooperage. The curing of Hams and Bacon. In short every one of today's basic industries as we have them in the United States had its genesis in the cabin.

But mighty few of them got rich at it, for the simple reason that the capacity of every man is sharply limited and quantity production—"mass production"—as it is now called, is far beyond the power of any individual.

By the time the War of the Revolution had been successfully achieved the tremendous opportunities existing in this country had become pretty well advertised abroad and the tide of immigration set in, strongly. The enormous and rapid increase in population naturally resulted in a correspondingly increased demand for all sorts of essential commodities. The little, isolated "factories" proved utterly inadequate for meeting these demands.

Therefore, they quite logically turned to Europe for funds with which to enlarge their facilities. And they got the money. England supplied much of it. Germany, France, Holland and other financially strong countries were likewise well represented. Our own Atlantic seaboard contributed some.

Such a situation can have but one outcome; the EARNINGS of these factories, railroads and other industries which were financed with "outside capital" went to those who supplied the capital. Always and inevitably this is the case—justly so of course, but that does not mitigate its inevitable hardships.

Our pioneering is done now; our own country has not only fulfilled its original obligations to the capital supplied by Europe but has become the richest nation on the globe, our citizens being amply able to finance any project.

As a matter of fact the former state of affairs is REVERSED and today it is decidedly more difficult to uncover a sane, sound and sensible project capable of earning generous returns than it is to finance it.

Emissaries of the great Insurance Companies, Investment Banking Houses and similar concerns fortified with virtually unlimited money-resources are combing the country in their search for sound industrial opportunities for profitable placement of capital in modest, moderate or large amounts.

This being the case, it is becoming more and more difficult to localize any worth while project in such a way as to insure retention of its earnings in communities where such enterprises originate and function and the worthy dwellers in these areas are subjected to the humiliation of seeing the robust profits accruing through development of their own resources and operated by their own people, pass into the hands of some REMOTE INVESTORS WHO OWN THE STOCK OF THEIR LOCAL CORPORATIONS, while participation of their "home folks" in this domestic prosperity is restricted to returns from ACTUAL LABOR and HAS NO SHARE at all in Dividends, "Melons and similar desirable disbursements because they failed to take advantage of the opportunity when presented. People are waking up to these conditions. They are studying the causes by which effects are produced. They are coming to understand that where their own capital is employed in exploitation of their own resources, the DIVIDENDS as well as the pay-rolls pile up on the right side of their own bank account and because of this awakening there is a growing sense of pride, contentment and satisfaction in many communities formerly infested by the "bugs" of Unrest and Discontent. Why? Simply because not only do their own young men—and women—find congenial, profitable employment at home, but the elders of the communities Own The Business by reason of investment of their funds in its securities. Hence its EARNINGS stay and accumulate, right in their community and under modern skilled and competent management, supplemented by modern machinery and methods, where usually these earnings are most astonishingly generous.

And so today, the advantages and benefits of keeping our money at home are too manifest to admit of argument, and where we are fortunate to live within an area where choice and profitable opportunity for EMPLOYMENT of OUR FUNDS have been uncovered, and caused to function in developing a project for this district that is of a class that ranks twelfth among American industries.

Miss Doris Jamison, Milwaukee Downer college, was home for her Thanksgiving vacation.

Some of you parents had better keep an eye on your boys and girls to see that they are not making a practice of "parking" on the red "safety islands" around town. There was one standing on the light at the intersection of Lake and Victoria streets Saturday night, trying to pull off something smart, happily oblivious of what might have happened had he slid off about the time a car was turning the corner on two wheels.

These cold days even made a member of the post office force put down his ear lappers.

There is an epidemic around town—an epidemic of goose pimples.

Few people ever take the time to witness the stirring marathon race which occurs each year between Christmas Shopping and Family Bankroll. Each year Family Bankroll (F. B. for short) presses closely on the heels of that ever fast runner, Christmas Shopping. Each year poor old F. B. loses out at the finish, exhausted and depleted of strength, while brutal C. S. smashes his way to his annual victory. This year F. B. is tottering and flinching along the way, 20 days from the finish. Out with you shoppers and see his downfall!

At least one of Antioch's robins failed to make the conventional southern exodus this year. Yes, there is one, and she makes her home on Main street with Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Johnson. Maybe she couldn't make train connections and maybe she invested her pennies in stocks and lost out during the recent slump. (With apologies to Mrs. J. for the clever reasons set forth). Addendum: It could have been possible that she had a few words with her husband and they agreed to disagree. Ssh! Old Eagle Eye will give you the low-down on the situation—Mrs. Johnson sees to it that Mrs. Robin never has to go hungry, and this thoughtfulness is born of a kludgy spirit and with no commercial complex.

When it's cold a goodly share of Antioch folks are content to sit by the fireplace or near the register or radiator after the furnace has been stoked and listen to the famous N. B. C.

Old Eagle Eye Says--

The melancholy days have come. The snow has made new business for the clothing merchant, sent the head of the family to see what is the matter with the blamed furnace, and mother into the attic to drag out the heavies for Willie and the rest.

With the mercury occasionally hitting below zero and usually hovering about zero, the weather has become the talk of the town and well it might be. Going outside without a coat is akin to the torture meted out to the victims of the Spanish inquisition and even putting on the red flannels brings no visible relief in the cold spell which is tenacious the city.

HintsPastries That Pass
Every Taste Test

Small tarts and pastries lend a new interest to the everyday menu, and you always may be sure they will be welcomed by your family. They're the "something different" too, that you so often need for parties and special occasions.

Fortunately, these little tartlets and pies are almost as easy to make as to eat. When you go into your cozy kitchen on a cold day 'tis a pleasure to bake them and even the warm oven somehow seems to be a friendly helper.

Every section of the country has its favorite recipes for turnovers, tarts and pastries. For instance, the delightful little fried pies which are considered a great delicacy in the southern states are almost unknown elsewhere. Below is a recipe for them, as well as for some of the favorites in other localities:

Mammy's Fried Pies

Roll thin pie pastry one-eighth inch thick, and cut into circles about three inches in diameter. On one of the circles place a spoon of mince meat or fruit preserves, leaving plenty of space at the edges. Moisten this space all around, place another circle on top, and press the edges firmly together. Fry in deep fat as for doughnuts, or saute with a little fat in a hot frying pan, turning the pie so that it will brown on both sides.

Spiced Apple Butter Tarts

Line shallow tart pans with plain pastry, and fill with apple butter. Mix until crumbly, 1 heaping tablespoon flour, 2 heaping tablespoons granulated sugar, and 1 tablespoon butter. Sprinkle the top of the tarts generously with this mixture and bake in a moderately hot oven until the pastry is done and the top delicately brown.

Mince Meat Turnovers

Roll pastry quite thin, and cut into three inch squares. Place a spoon of mince meat in the center of each square, moisten edges together with the tines of a fork. Bake fifteen to twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Tartlets Supreme

Line shallow tart pans with pastry, and bake in a hot oven. Meanwhile, mash 2 ripe bananas and add 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 unbeaten egg whites and a bit of salt. Beat all together until stiff and frothy. Add a little almond extract, and fill the tart shells with this mixture. Bake in a moderate oven until the filling is thoroughly set. Cool, and top with whipped cream to which ½ teaspoon of vanilla has been added. Dot the surface of the whipped cream with bits of currant jelly, and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Mince Pie with Apple Meringue

Bake a pastry shell as for any filled pie and fill with a one-pound jar of mince meat which has been heated to the boiling point. Top with apple meringue, made by folding into 2 stiffly beaten egg whites, 1 grated apple mixed with ½ cup granulated sugar. Brown in a moderate oven for from ten to twenty minutes.

Jam Sandwich Biscuits

Mix 2½ cups flour, ½ cup sugar, and a generous half cup of butter. Add 1 beaten egg. Knead well, roll thin, cut in small rounds and bake in a moderate oven until delicately brown.

While hot, put together in pairs, using apple butter or fruit preserves. Dip in powdered sugar and serve.

MAUVE MOLEHILLS

A Scotchman in a neighboring town where there are two barbershops is growing whiskers for the simple reason that he can't figure this out.

At Barbershop No. 1, you can get a shave for 20c and a haircut for 40c, a total of 60c.

At Barbershop No. 2, you can get a shave for 25c and a haircut for 35c, a total of 60c.

Suppose you get your shave at Barbershop No. 1, at 20c, you save 5c. Then you hike over to Barbershop No. 2, and get your hair cut for 35c, another saving of 5c, or a total saving of 10c.

Here's the joker. Twenty cents plus 35c equals 55c, which will account for saving 5c on the haircut and shave. Plain figuring goes to show that you saved a nickel at each shop—but your pocketbook tells you that you have only saved a nickel.

Sally Ann's

at Her Home

In Sally Ann's papa's cellar stands a basket filled with hay. In this soft nest a proud mother cat is purring her four babies off to sleep.

One is Maltess with sky-blue eyes. Two are black and white and one is black all over; not a white seek to his foot, nor even a white necktie under the dear little chin. His name is Colonel Brooks, a pretty big name for a kitty-baby, isn't it? You should see him step up to Sally Ann's big dog, Rufus, without one sign of fear, coaxing him to be friendly with the sweetest of love-making. And old Rufus, who up until now has hated the very sight of a cat, has fallen in love with the little Colonel. Papa always made it his business to see that the little black kitty got to bed early.

But one night last week when Sally Ann's papa was quite late in coming home he found a black kitty on the front doorstep, crying to be let in. He supposed of course that it was Colonel Brooks; so he picked him up; put him on the cellar stairs; and told him to go straight to bed.

Then papa seated himself to read the evening paper, but no sooner was he seated in the easy chair than a black kitty, for all the world like Colonel, jumped into his lap, purring like a small steam-engine.

"Is this you, Colonel Brooks," he said. Didn't I just put you down collar? How did you get up here?"

Papa could hardly believe his own eyes; so he took the cat under his arm and went down the cellar stairs to have the strange matter explained. But when he reached the foot of the stairs, the queerest thing happened. Another black cat came out to meet him! And what was the most puzzling of all, the cat on the cellar floor was just like the cat in Sally Ann's papa's arms, and the cat in his arms was just like the cat on the cellar floor. Not a white hair on either of them and they were just exactly the same size. Oh dear me, how was papa over to know which was their own dear kitty?

Just then a snore came from the box where Rufus lay asleep.

"Oh," cried papa, "I'll take both cats over to Rufus. I'll know which is Colonel Brooks in just two minutes."

Yes, indeed, in just a tall was Rufus know what to do. He gave a growl that sounded like a small clap of thunder. And lo and behold, the kitty under papa's arm leaped to the top of the woodpile, hissing with anger and fright. But the little black kitty under papa's other arm gave a spring straight into the middle of Rufus' warm bed and began to rub noses with his big friend. Then Sally Ann's papa knew that this one was Col. Brooks. But if it hadn't been for this wise old Rufus, he might never have found out which kitty was theirs.

Worth Knowing

Canned tomatoes are a good source of vitamins A, B, and C. Include them frequently in your menus. Young children and even babies may be given tomato juice.

To clean burners on a gas stove, take them out of their sockets and brush off all loose dirt. Boil in a solution of washing soda made by adding ½ pound of soda to each gallon of water, for one-half hour then rinse and wipe dry, and put back and light the gas to finish drying off.

Shirred eggs are a pleasant change for breakfast or lunch. Drop the eggs into a shallow buttered baking dish, sprinkle buttered bread crumbs on top, and bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are set. Individual baking dishes may be used, and the eggs sent in them to the table.

Perfumes

All plants contain oils which create the scent which attract to them the creatures necessary for the plants' life. It is these oils which form the base of most of our "vegetable" perfumes. There are also "animal" and "artificial" perfumes. The former are valuable because they are more lasting and stronger.

Printing

There is one kind of printing that you want—printing that pays a dividend on the investment.

A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letter is read.

The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neatness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing.

We are equipped to give you that kind of printing. Let us prove it to you.

Starts with the starter

Always on its toes, Shell 400 "Extra Dry" Gasoline knows exactly what you mean when you step on the starter. It's all gasoline, and more... it's extra dry as only Shell knows how to make it. A volatile, sparkling motor fuel that sets a new standard of easy cold-weather starting. Refined to unusually strict specifications. It combines flashing power, eager get-away and unexpected mileage with amazing quick-starting quality. No wonder regular users say its performance equals that of many gasolines selling at a higher price.

STOP AT THE SIGN OF THE SHELL

Through the facilities of five great refineries, strategically located, Shell 400 "Extra Dry" is refined to specifications that meet the demands of different climates. That's why this motor fuel provides such uniformly fine performance everywhere... why it "starts with the starter" in Duluth as easily as in New Orleans.

ANTIOCH POST No. 748

Legion Auxiliary
News

The Antioch Post No. 748, of the American Legion, consists of 31 members today, but there is still a long way to go to reach the sixty mark of the total for last year. Comrades, your attention is called to this matter; get in now.

The local post is about to enter into its fifth year of organization; the last four years have been enjoyed, even though the officers did experience trials in their attempts to keep the members together in order to instill into each the necessity of having an organization of ex-service men.

Regardless of the length of time that it has been organized, the Legion of today is in its infancy in that it still has a tremendous amount of work which must be done.

At this very moment some ex-service man is showing signs of a long hardship endured and since his defects will probably not show up at the time of the first examination, he has nothing on which to fall back except the American Legion. Do you realize that it is a very serious thing for an ex-service man not to be able to carry out his daily program of making a living for himself and his family? To give him aid is the problem of the American Legion.

Members of the local post are about to make preparations for a home for themselves, and if you are asked to support them in this work, do not disappoint them. It is your duty to help those that fought to make this country safe for justice, freedom, and democracy.

CATTLEMEN SHARPEN PENCILS FOR ATTACK ON COSTS OF FEEDING

Cheaper feed costs and consequently higher profits are in sight for Illinois cattle feeders through a series of 18 county cattle feeding schools to be staged in various parts of the state during the coming winter by the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. It is announced by E. T. Robbins, livestock extension specialist.

"Cattlemen attending the schools will sharpen their pencils and figure out some of the finer points of feeding for themselves," Robbins said. "For one thing, they will learn just why it is that experimental cattle fed by the agricultural college make big gains at low cost. They will learn just what ingredients in feeds are worth buying to add to farm grains and roughages for raising calves or fattening steers. The way and the why of using corn with clover, alfalfa or other legumes or grass as a basis for fattening cattle without buying very much other feed also will be explained.

"Instead of the general discussion which has characterized cattle feeders' meetings in the past, the instruction will be limited to the fundamental principles of combining feeds to make rations which are both cheap and efficient. Farm advisers will send out the invitations for the schools.

In some countries it will be necessary to limit the number so that desk or table room for figuring can be provided for each man."

Half of the 18 schools will be taught by Robbins. Others will be handled by H. P. Rusk, head of the college animal husbandry department, and H. H. Snapp, associate chief in beef cattle feeding.

The 18 counties in which schools will be held are Carroll, Cass, DeKalb, Henry, Kane, Knox, Lake, LaSalle, Lee, Macoupin, McDonough, McLean, Morgan, Pike, Sangamon, Warren, Winnebago and Woodford.

Miss Verlie Porter, Neuman, Ill., is a guest in the Petty home. Miss Neuman is a former student of Mr. Petty.

The Federal Council is constituted by twenty-seven Protestant Evangelical denominations, having approximately 22,000,000 members. The Executive Committee, which meets annually and consists of two representatives from each of the constituent bodies, who are officially appointed by these bodies, and one additional representative for every 500,000 of its communicants, or a major fraction thereof, together with the officials of the Federal Council, is the organization which is to meet in Chicago, celebrating the twenty-first anniversary of the organization of the Council.

The sessions of the Committee will be held in the St. James Methodist Episcopal Church, 46th Street and Ellis Avenue, and will be presided over by President Walter L. Ringle of Davidson College, North Carolina. In recognition of the Council's "coming of age," a public meeting will be held on Thursday evening, December 5, addressed by Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Council, who will interpret the larger significance of the movement toward church federation.

Among the many timely subjects to be discussed by these church leaders are the following:

Current movements toward larger unity; How to avoid the trend of industrial workers away from the churches; How to secure the largest possible spiritual results from the nineteenth hundredth anniversary of Pentecost; The extension of church federation in local and state areas; The relation of interdenominational movements to one another; The Paris Peace Pact and the London Conference on Limitation of Armaments;

Many other subjects will be discussed in the reports to be submitted by the ten permanent commissions, which deal with specialized phases of Christian service, each of which has its own executives and experts. These commissions will report on Evangelism; the Church and Social Service; International Justice and Good Will; the Church and Race Relations; Good Will between Jews and Christians; Relations with Churches in other lands; Christian Education; Mercy and Relief; Research and Education; State and local cooperation; Radio and Drama; Motion Pictures.

What Church Federation Has Accomplished

The practical results of the work of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, which will celebrate its twenty-first birthday at the Chicago meeting of its Executive Committee, December 4th to 6th, is indicated by the following items:

Twenty-one years ago, there was little teamwork among the Christian denominations. There was no national body through which they could cooperate. Today, twenty-seven denominations are working closely together through the Federal Council of Churches.

Twenty-one years ago, local councils of churches or federations for any city or state were scarcely heard of. Today, with the assistance of the Federal Council, church federations have been established in most large cities and state councils in six states.

Twenty-one years ago, there was no concerted effort to stimulate and assist churches in personal visitation evangelism. Today, through the Federal Council, the denominations work out programs for co-operative evangelistic effort.

Twenty-one years ago, ministers had no source for accurate information concerning the social and industrial changes which so vitally affect their ministry. Today, through the Federal Council, ministers can secure reliable facts about current situations, the product of skilled research.

Twenty-one years ago, the churches had no definite method for making their influence felt in opposing measures likely to foment war or to promoting constructive endeavors for peace. Today, the Federal Council is an effective force in creating the sentiment for ridding the world of war and making the Peace Pact effective and for building up public opinion in support of constructive agencies for international justice and peace.

Twenty-one years ago, lack of mutual understanding stimulated prejudice between racial and religious groups, and there was no means for focusing church influence against these evils. Today, the Federal Council is steadily combating prejudice and cultivating good will.

Twenty-one years ago, the churches could not effectively reach the masses in their own homes. Today, the Federal Council is sponsoring great religious programs which, through the radio, are heard in every city and hamlet in the country.

Antioch Netters Defeat Kenosha by 21-20 Score

Emphasizing a typical spirit, the Antioch Netters whipped the Anaconda Kenosha team by a score of 21-20 in one of the closest and most thrilling games ever played in the local high school gym.

After the terrible showing last week, Antioch came back and played heads up ball to win this fine game. Kenosha had beaten the Y. M. C. A. Heavies from Waukegan and expected an easy victory, but was overcome.

Starting fast, Antioch had a 15-9 lead at the half due to accurate shooting by Steininger and Nixon, but the second half was different. Running the lead to 19-9, the Netters received a set back when Steininger went out on fouls. For a while, the Netters fell apart and the visitors made it 19-18 with 2 minutes to go. Then Norman Richter pushed in a basket and Bob Wilson, came back with a long one and after a minute of thrilling play the game ended. It was about the best game at the gym this year. Steininger and Wilson were outstanding, while Christy and Simpson played marvelous defense. Hughes played good ball the last few minutes and with Wilson saved the game. Nixon was way off and couldn't hit the basket missing enough shots to save the game.

"INSCHOOL DAYS"

Antioch Team Grabs Victory From Genoa City By 21-3 Score

"Captain Applejack" To Be Given at High School December 9

In a ragged slow game of basketball, the members of the local team won from the Genoa City fellows by a score of 21 to 3 in the local gym Thursday night. Although Antioch's floor work was fairly good, their shooting was poor. Coach Reed used a large number of men in this game in order to afford himself the opportunity of selecting the best material for the games which are forthcoming. Those who were on the floor Thursday night are: Schneider, Gromlin, King, Brogan, Fuchs, Martin, Hanke, McNeil, Hoffman, Florio, Nickerson, Kennedy, McCormick, Cook, Rogers, Hughes, Paelni, Deiman, Pachay, and Armstrong.

The plot of the senior class play, "Captain Applejack", an Arabian knight's adventure in three acts, which will be presented at the local high school auditorium, December 9, is as follows:

A young man is so loved by his existence that he advertises his house for sale and determines to go off in search of adventure. He gets his wish, but without leaving the house. Among other things he has his eye out for the flash of love at first sight and imagines he sees it in the gorgeous lady who rushes into his quiet life with the thrilling tale that she is a celebrated Russian dancer who has escaped from Moscow with the priceless jewels of a duchess and is being pursued by a terrible Bolshevik.

She learns of a secret cabinet in which a parchment giving the details of a supposed hidden treasure and this is what she is after. The parchment states that an ancestor of Ambrose Applejohn was a notorious pirate.

Guarding the burglars who are prowling about, Ambrose sets up all night, only to fall asleep and dream that he is a pirate. The pirate scene, which is exciting and picturesque, is then enacted.

LAKE COUNTY WOMEN MAKE ENTRIES IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Mrs. D. H. Minto, Antioch, Is Among Those Who Exhibited Foods

Great interest has been occasioned among local housewives in the announcement from Chicago of the prize winners in the National Canning contest held recently. Among the Lake county women who had entries in the contest were: Miss Della Miller, Grayslake; Mrs. G. Gillett, Waukegan; Mrs. Ada M. McDonald, Grayslake; Miss Eunice Pace, Grayslake; Mrs. D. H. Minto, Antioch; Mrs. Della Wald, Zion; Miss Pearl Bacchalyso, Grayslake; Miss Emma Frederick, Libertyville; Mrs. Wm. L. Rapp, Mundelein; Mrs. Lloyd Russell, Round Lake; Mrs. W. J. Finel, Grange; Miss Elta Gordon, Waukegan; Miss Rose Abrams, Waukegan; Mrs. Martin Hickman, Grayslake; Mrs. Syver M. Hansen, Deerfield; Miss Irene Petersen, Libertyville; Mrs. Lawrence Prince, Grayslake; Miss Matilda Soukrep, North Chicago; Mrs. John Williams, Lake Villa; Mrs. Lena Bell, Waukegan; Mrs. Lloyd Rapp, Mundelein; Miss Emma Frederick, Libertyville; Mrs. Albert Pennington, Grayslake; Mrs. Mary Cashmore, Waukegan.

The grand champion winner in the contest was Mrs. Mary Hyass of Kenosha, Wis., whose entry of a quart of green peas brought her $1,250. Mrs. Hyass was awarded first prize of $250 by the judges for the best entry in the vegetable class, and $1,000 as grand sweepstakes prize for the finest jar of food in the three classes of vegetables, fruits and meats.

Alabama Women Wins First Place
The first prize of $250 in the meat class went to Mrs. Dudley Brooks, of Alabama.

chorus of 50 voices will sing between acts.

Miss Tonton's pupils are practicing for a play which she is planning on presenting at Christmas time. The name of it is "Twelve Christmas Stockings" and it will be played by Mother Goose characters.

Roba Red, Ala., for a jar of chicken, while Miss Margery Drow, of Athol, Mass., won the prize of $250 on a jar of pears adjudged first in the fruit class.

In all $5,823 in cash prizes was distributed to the 203 winners in the contest, in which more than 25,000 women and girls from every section of the United States had entries.

Mrs. Hyass is a veteran canner and puts up yearly between 600 and 800 quarts of food to cut living expenses. She had planned to put up ten quarts of peas for home use this year, but took extra pains with one jar which she decided to enter in the contest. From her vegetable patch she picked a milk pailful of peas and as she shelled them she selected the peas by hand and then carefully sifted out those of even size by use of a colander. The result was a jar of perfectly uniform peas which amazed the judges. Mrs. Hyass plans to use the $1,250 in stocking the little farm with pure bred Holstein cows, an ambition she nurtured for many years.

Women Use Modern Methods
A significant fact revealed by the contest is that American housewives are abandoning to a great extent the old-time canning methods, like the open kettle, cold pack, hot pack and water bath, in favor of the steam pressure cooker method advocated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Fully 75 per cent of the prize-winning jars, including Mrs. Hyass', were put up by this method. Mrs. Hyass processed her prize peas in the pressure cooker which she uses every day in her cooking, and attributes the greatest part of her success in winning the prize to her method of canning.

Judges Nationally Famous
Judges in the National Canning contest were Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Dr. Margaret Justin, president of the American Home Economics Association,

ANTIOCH GRADE SCHOOL OBSERVES STATE'S BIRTHDAY

Illinois Has Become One of Foremost States in the Union

In accordance with a request of Gov. Emmerson, the Antioch Grade school observed the birthday of the state on December 3, by emphasizing, in every class room, the facts involved in its development prior to its admission in to the sisterhood of states.

One hundred and eleven years ago Tuesday Illinois emerged from the wilderness, a newly created state to some day stand in the front ranks of commonwealths in many fields of endeavor.

One hundred and eleven years ago this state of ours was a frontier state, in many sections still virgin territory. The southern part was sparsely inhabited and possessed the chief towns of Vandalia, the capital, Kaskaskia, the former capital, and Shawneetown, the Ohio river settlement. The northern half was even more thinly settled. It was for the most part a vast expanse of lonely prairie and forest land.

The first post office in the northern part had just been established at Galena. The towns in the north were mere trading posts, and Chicago was known as Ft. Dearborn. Transportation was by horseback and stage coach, though the stage lines were few and very unsatisfactory and the roads were in poor condition.

Farming, the principal industry, although it was crude, served the pressing and comparatively simple needs of the pioneer period. It was carried on mostly on patch farms around log cabins on the uplands and in the river bottoms of southern Illinois. Much of the land was held only by squatters. The community spirit was kept alive within this vast territory by circuit riders, who visited their widely scattered flocks, held revivals and camp meetings, and gave the pioneers a little relief from the monotony of a nomadic life.

Religion was the chief intellectual interest and the chief emotional outlet. Newspapers were small weeklies and the population was about 55,000. On May 21, 1812, Illinois was raised to second grade of territorial government and in October of that year it elected its first territorial officers and its delegates to congress. The first session of the territorial legislature followed. The outbreak of the War of 1812 found Illinois taking its first steps in self-government in that the frontier was in a state of defense against the Indian attacks incited by British agents through the entire Northwest.

In 1813 congress passed the Pre-emption Act for Illinois, giving settlers the right of pre-emption on public lands and protecting them against speculation. In 1818 the legislature of the territory sent Nathaniel Pope as territorial delegate to Washington seeking admission for Illinois into the union as a state. On Pope's suggestion, three per cent of the money secured by the sale of public lands, which other states of the Northwest territory had been given on their admission for the building of roads and bridges was to be used in Illinois for public schools and the line as fixed by the Ordinance of 1787 was moved farther north, giving the state frontage on Lake Michigan. The line was fixed at 42 degrees and 30 minutes, a strip of land 61 miles wide from which 14 counties have since been made was taken from Wisconsin territory. This change in the boundary made it possible for Illinois to claim Chicago, the lead mines of Galena, and the Illinois and Michigan canal. On April 18, Congress adopted an act enabling the people of and fixing the present boundary. Illinois to frame a State Constitution. In July following members of a Constitutional Convention were elected. This convention assembled on August 26 and adopted the first Constitution of the State. The first election of state officers was held on September 17, and the first Legislature of the State officers was held on September 17, and the first State Legislature convened at Kaskaskia on October 5. The following day Shadrach Bond, the first governor of State, and other state officers were inaugurated. This act formally admitted Illinois as a state of the Federal Union was adopted December 3, 1818.

GAINS FIFTEEN POUNDS WHILE TAKING KONJOLA

Quincy Lady Found in New And Different Medicine Her First And Only Relief

MISS DORATHEA DASCH

"What a splendid medicine Konjola is," said Miss Dorathea Dasch, 603 Broadway, Quincy. "In three weeks three bottles of this medicine did me more good than all other medicines I ever tried. Indigestion had limited my diet to the plainest of foods and liquids. I lost weight and strength and could work but part of the time. My nerves were in a poor state from lack of restful sleep, and I had become utterly discouraged."

"Konjola" went right to work. In three weeks I gained fifteen pounds. Most of my strength returned and I slept well. I ate anything I wished whenever I was hungry and the gas pains and headaches caused by indigestion were no longer felt. It is amazing to me that any one medicine could do all that Konjola did in so short a time. I hope every sufferer from stomach ailment may be induced by my experience to try this new medicine."

Konjola is sold in Antioch at S. H. Reeves' drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Antioch Due For Great Development, Captain Ed. Dayton Believes

Is Antioch striving to build an appropriate memorial in honor of its hero soldiers, both living and dead? Answer, "I do not know."
Living conditions, whether in a city, a village or a hamlet are neither better nor worse than the home folks make them. We understand from reliable authority that during the early days of the current year something like 65,000 folders explaining the marvelous advantages of Antioch and the region of lakes, were broadcast throughout the length and breadth of the United States.

Community Must Make Good
Did these circulars produce results? That is a question I'd rather not answer, because there different standards of results namely, good, bad and indifferent. I'll ask you—did Antioch live up to its advertising? If it did not, it's the same as it would be with a bad show heavily billed. The crowd comes but it departs dissatisfied and many of that throng never return.

A great forward movement has been launched by Antioch's leading citizens, probably the most important move in her history. It is the development of a quarter million dollar project in the down town district, namely, a strictly modern, up to the minute hotel of 75 rooms, every one with a bath, and a 1,000 seat de luxe theatre, second to none in this section of the country.

Will Bring Other Improvements
The hotel will be furnished elaborately and equipped to accommodate local societies and citizens; in brief it will serve as a much-needed community center. Special attention will be paid to the tourist and commercial traveler, and the board of directors contemplate a plan whereby much improved transportation facilities may be worked out for Antioch. Added accommodations for summer dwellers and golfers in the way of motor bus, taxi, phone and telegraph service will be featured by the new hotel management.

As stated in a previous edition of the Antioch News, a very satisfactory lease has been executed, covering a term of years on both hotel and theatre.

Fine Christmas Gift to Antioch
This deserving project needs the support, both moral and financial, of every citizen in Antioch—it's a big one and a real one. Antioch and its surrounding territory is asked to subscribe twenty-five per cent of the required amount to complete this development. To date we have done well, but not well enough. Don't say, "I'll come in if it doesn't hurt me." No business or sporting proposition was ever "put over" on that basis. The good old yuletide is close upon us, and the work is expected to be finished by Christmas day. So why not say: "We, the citizens of Antioch, our good old home town, have decided to present said Antioch, Illinois, with one good hotel and theatre as a much needed and deserved gift, this Christmas day, 1929. We are too proud to allow the other fellow to do it all!"

Scout News

The members of the Boy Scouts have found it feasible to change the time of meeting from Tuesday night until Thursday night, on account of grade school basketball practice.

Two new members, Albert Vykuta and Irving Walsh, have been taken into the organization.

A transfer, officially passed upon by the group, was issued to Richard Vorhees, Waukegan.

A campaign for the 1930 funds will be put on as soon as possible, presumably by the first of the year.

Plans for the proposed Scout play have been dropped.

Arrangements are being made to have various business men of the community deliver lectures at the meetings.

Plans relative to a district rally meeting were discussed at the last meeting, but nothing definite was decided upon.

Obituary

Everett Culver, son of Horace and Maria Culver, was born in the state of New York, Nov. 25, 1852, and died Nov. 21, 1929.

At an early date, the family came west, locating at what is known as the Culver, homestead. Here he spent his early life. On Feb. 29, 1889, he was united in marriage to Alice E. Gilbert. In 1892 he moved to the farm where he since lived.

He leaves a wife; four children, Blanche Richards, Floyd, Eva Atwell, and Horace; one brother, Simon, of Grayslake; one sister, Mrs. Julia Allen of El Paso, Texas; four grandchildren; two great grandchildren; and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn the loss of one they loved dearly.

Funeral services, which were largely attended, were held last Sunday afternoon from the home, Rev. Alvin J. Haggard, pastor of the Lake Villa M. E. church officiating. Frank Sherwood sang, "The Old Rugged Cross", which was Mr. Culver's favorite. It was carried to his last resting place in the Fox Lake cemetery.

Our Standard of Living

Thousands of years ago men and women dwelt in caves. The women and children huddled together while the men went out with spear and hatchet to secure that primal want of all mankind—FOOD.

This food was the raw flesh of wild animals, clothing, wild animals' skins. Comfort, as we know it, was then unknown. Safety for self and family was dependent upon the skill to kill.

The only law was the law of might. The strong survived—the weak and sick perished.

Gradually, through the ages, man's standard of living improved, until today the standard of living the world over is higher than any time since the dawn of history and people of the United States have more of the comforts and luxuries of living than the people of any other country.

We, of the United States, are blessed with greater prosperity, greater pleasure, luxury and more conveniences than any other group of people in the history of mankind.

America abounds with opportunity for study, safe and healthful work—the kind of work that leaves the worker with enough leisure for recuperation and recreation—time to partake of the joy of living. Working conditions are better than in any other country. Not only are working conditions better and hours of labor shorter, but most important of all, our workers enjoy an opportunity to earn sufficient income to meet the cost of the highest standards of living in all human history.

During the last score of years the income of the average family has more than doubled. This has resulted in allowing most of us to enjoy comforts and pleasures that our fathers could but dream of.

But there are still those among us who have failed to prosper in like proportion. There are families whose annual income is below that necessary to properly raise their children—our future citizens. It is our duty to our community to furnish these wage earners with the opportunity of earning a sufficient income to maintain the average standard of living. General employment at high wages is the heart of our prosperity.

One method of creating this opportunity of service to others is to foster home industry—promote our community's welfare—enjoy the highest standard of living possible to each one of us individually.

This page is presented by the undersigned in the interest of this community's welfare. We gratefully acknowledge our debt to our customers and clients who are enabling us to earn a livelihood in this community and dedicate ourselves and our interests to the raising of the standard of living in

The Treasure of the Bucoleon

By Arthur D. Howden Smith

SYNOPSIS

In New York, Hugh Chesby, English World War veteran, relates a story of a treasure in Constantinople in the existence of which his uncle, Lord Chesby, firmly believes. A cablegram notifies Hugh of his uncle's sailing for New York. At the dock Hugh and his chum, Jack Nash, learn from Watkins, Lord Chesby's valet, that the old gentleman has left with a stranger, purporting to be a friend of Hugh. A mysterious telephone message notifies Hugh that his uncle is in a hospital, dying, victim of an assassin. Before his death he has handed the treasure, and tells them he was stabbed by "Toutou." With Lord Chesby's body, Hugh and Jack sail for England. In London Hugh and Jack meet their war buddy, Nikka Zarenko, famous gypsy violinist, and pore over some old documents, seemingly having a bearing on the treasure and its location. A hidden room, referred to as the "Prior's Vault," is frequently mentioned. Money, Hilbert, man of shady reputation, but owner of a neighboring estate, calls on Hugh with a party of friends, mostly foreigners. Conversation turns on the "Prior's Vault." That night Jack awakes to find three men in the library. A fight ensues in which one man is killed, Jack is certain one of the men is "Toutou." Jack and his friends find the hidden room, and in it documents telling that the treasure is located in the palace of the Bucoleon in Constantinople. Jack Nash's cousin, Betty Alice, with her uncle, is in Constantinople, and Hugh, Nikka, Jack, and Watkins set out for the Turkish capital.

"There's no top now. So are my brushes. Everything in order, but—What do you say to giving this train a look-over, Jack? If there are any familiar faces aboard we ought to be able to spot them. Nikka, you and Watty can scout guard here and protect each other until we come back."

Our car was about the middle of the train, and at my suggestion, Hugh went forward, while I followed the corridor toward the rear. I did not see anyone who looked at all like any of the members of Toutou's gang whom I knew. In fact, the passengers were the usual lot one sees on a Continental through-train.

I was returning and had reached the rear end of our car when I heard a scream just behind me and a door crashed open. I turned involuntarily. A woman in black, with a veil flying around her pale face, ran into the corridor, hesitated, and then seized me by the arm.

"Oh, Monsieur! My husband! He is so ill," she cried in French. "He dies at this moment. I pray you, have you a flask?"

The tears were streaming from her eyes; her face was convulsed with grief. I reached for my flask.

"Calm yourself, madame," I said. "Do you take this. I will ask the guard to help in finding a physician."

"Oh, no, no," she protested. "He has fallen. He is so heavy I cannot lift him. And he dies, Monsieur! Oh, mon Dieu! Mon Dieu!"

I slipped past her into the compartment, flask in hand. One of the electric lights was on, and by its light I discerned the body of a man huddled face down on the floor in the midst of a litter of baggage and wraps. I dropped the flask on one of the seats, and leaned over to hoist the man up. As I did so she re-entered and closed the door, still bubbling brokenly in French.

"If you will help me, please, madame," I suggested. "He is very heavy, as you say."

"But gladly, Monsieur. If you will turn him over—so that we may see if he breathes."

I braced my hands beneath his chest. I started to lift him—and my wrists were caught in a human vise. So quickly that I could not follow his movements, the inert man on the floor had twisted me down beside him, his knee was on my chest, my wind was cut off, a pair of steel handcuffs fettered me, and as I opened my mouth to scream a cotton gag was thrust in place by the woman who had lured me in.

"Vain!" she said complacently, knotting the cords of the gag around my neck. "Or if you'd rather have it in American, Mr. Nash, you're in here, Toutou, get off him. You won't help by crushing his chest in."

She gave my captor a shove, and he rose with a growl and a menacing gesture of clawed hands to take a cent by the door. I could see now that he was Toutou or Teodoresch, cleverly disguised.

"Get up," said the woman.

She stood and put her hands under my armpits, exerting a strength amazing for her size. I staggered up and collapsed on the seat opposite Toutou and as far away from him as I could get. Inwardly, I cursed myself for a fool. I had been nipped, tripped at the very moment I was priding myself on being on the alert.

"The woman was of a Latin brunette type, with masses of wavy black hair, great lustrous brown eyes, and a pliant beauty of face."

After a muttered interchange of words with Toutou in a language I did not understand, she fastened her gaze on me, and evidently something of my thoughts was reflected in my face, for she burst out laughing.

"You can't make me out!" she jeered at an unmistakable American accent.

"You're not the first, Mr. Nash. I'm going to take that gag out, and Toutou is going to sit beside you with his hand on the back of your neck, and if you so much as start to yip he'll break it just as if you were a chicken." Her eyes glinted harshly. "Do you get me? That goes."

I nodded my head. Toutou moved up beside me, and a silver wrenching my spine, as his hand unfurled the gag and enclosed my neck.

"We are perfectly safe," she continued. "You are my insane husband. We are Americans, and I am taking you to relatives in Italy. Toutou is the physician in charge of the case." She reached inside her bodice, and produced some papers. "Here are your passport and a medical certificate. Everything in order."

"The one question is: are you going to do business with us willingly or must we make you?"

I moistened my lips.

"I don't know what you mean," I answered as coolly as I could. "I haven't got anything you might want. Search me."

"I will."

She dug out every pocket. She opened my vest, felt for a money-belt, felt inside my shirt, took my shoes off, examined them carefully by flashlight, and made sure I had nothing in my socks. She was a methodical person, that lady. Having searched me, she put everything back in its proper place, drew on my shoes and laced them. Then she sat back and stared at me.

"And there was nothing in the baggage," she commented. "What about your friends, Mr. Nash?"

"None of them has anything," I said.

"But you found something. You must have. What was it?"

She leaned forward, and her eyes bored into mine. I stared back uncompromisingly.

"I don't want to have to let Toutou hurt you," she warned softly.

At that something in me burst into flame.

"It doesn't matter what he does," I spat at her. "He can't make me tell you anything. As a matter of fact, I haven't anything definite, none of us has. But if we had, we wouldn't tell. I'll die before I'll help your gang."

That sounds like stage heroics, but I was in an exalted mood. I could feel Toutou's grip on my neck, and I imagined I didn't have long to live in any case.

"It's only a question of time," she went on. "You don't realize that you and your friends are alone in this. You have a great organization against you. You have as much chance as the fly after he touches the flypaper. All we have to do is watch you, and at the worst we can take the treasure away from you when you find it. You know you are in a helpless position. My friend. Why not talk sensibly? We can easily get rid of you and your friends if we care to."

"You'll find it harder, the longer you delay," I flashed at her. "You are educating us."

She laughed as merrily as a convent schoolgirl.

"So I see." She leaned closer to me. "Now, just between the two of us—we're Americans, aren't we?—what did you find behind the chimney? Come, let's get this over with! We'll make an accommodation. Think—"

There was a buzz of voices in the corridor. I heard a dry old-fashioned Englishman, then Hugh's clipped English French and Nikka's smooth accent.

A hand rattled on the knob of the door. The woman slipped off her waist, dropped her skirt to the floor, and tumbled her hair over her shoulders—all in two consecutive movements.

As she unlocked the door, she clutched her lingerie about her. Toutou reached up one hand and switched off the single light; his other hand compressed my neck and throat so that I could hardly breathe. She pushed open the door.

"Why the disturbance, messieurs?" she questioned silkily in French with the Parisian tang. "In here we have illness. Is it necessary?"

One look was enough for them. I suppose. It would have died me, I know. I heard Hugh's boyish gasp, and Nikka's apology.

"It was a mistake, madame. A friend of mine is missing. We thought—"

"Here there are only ourselves," she assured them, holding the door wider.

Hugh cursed bluntly in Anglo-Saxon, and the guard joined his voice in hectic phraseology. The woman slowly reclosed the door.

"The light once more, Toutou," she whispered, and then she sank on the seat and laughed as she had before like a schoolgirl on a lark.

She rearranged her hair, picked up her waist and skirt, and put them on as casually as though she was in her boudoir.

"This writing that you found," she resumed her questioning, "is it definite? You may nod or shake your head."

I did nothing.

"Very well," she answered patiently. "We will try you further."

And for two hours she shot questions at me, attacking the problem from every conceivable angle, always with her eyes glued on my eyes, always vigilant for any sign of acquiescence or denial. At last she leaned back a trifle wearily.

"We approach Lyons," she said. "I shall let you go this time, Mr. Nash, principally because if we killed you it might frighten your friends away. Above everything, if we cannot learn the secret first, we must get you to Constantinople."

Toutou took from one of their bags a length of stout rope, and tied my legs from ankle to knee. The woman donned hat and furs and patted my shoulder.

"I wish you were with us, my friend. Ah, well, one wishes for the moon. Be of stout heart, and remember that Helene de Cespodes has saved you from the knife. I fancy we shall meet again, and I cannot promise always to be so kind-hearted."

She let Toutou collect their two bags, saw him to the door and then switched off the single light. They went out, the door closed, and I was in darkness. Suddenly, the door was reopened. The head of Helene de Cespodes showed against the lights in the corridor.

"Here is the key to those wristlets," she whispered, sliding it along the seat toward me. "Your friends can unlock them when they find you. I don't believe in being too hard on an enemy—nor when you don't have to be. Well, so long, boy."

I chuckled to myself as the door clicked the second time. She was a character, and no ordinary woman. I was still reflecting on the amazing three hours I had experienced in that railway compartment, when the brakes took hold, and the train slowed to a stop between the brightly lighted platforms of the Lyons station. There was the customary clatter of arriving and departing passengers. Footsteps sounded on the corridor outside; a hand wrenched at the door; and a guard bundled in, with two people behind him. As he turned in the light his face was a study in consternation.

The two people with him bolted pell-mell into the corridor, shrieking in terror. The guard stood fast, and stared at me, stroking his chin.

"Sacre Menn!" he muttered to himself.

At that moment Hugh, attracted by the rumpus the two startled passengers were making in the corridor, forced his way into the compartment, shoved the guard headlong on the floor and grabbed me by the arm.

"Are you all right, old man?" he cried. "For God's sake, what have they done with you?"

I motioned to the key on the seat, and he fitted it clumsily to the handcuffs. Nikka and Watkins ran in about this time; the guard regained his feet; the two passengers returned; somebody fetched the police.

To the latter I told a hasty cock-and-bull story. Handcuffs had assailed me, searched me for valuables which luckily I did not possess, and left me as I was found. The police, impressed by Hugh's title and our assertion that we had an important business engagement in Marseilles, placed no obstacles in the way of our departure.

So the express steamed out of Lyons ten minutes late, and Hugh and Nikka and Watkins escorted me back to our own compartment. And when I reached there, and was safe from observation, I jangled the handcuffs before their eyes and lay back and laughed until they thought I was hysterical.

"It may have been funny for you," snapped Hugh. "It certainly wasn't for us."

"It's funny for all of us," I insisted, wiping the tears from my eyes. "It's a joke—on us. Don't you see it, Hugh? You were claiming that we had shaken them off, that we could sound the 'Stole Away.' And then they ransacked our baggage and kidnapped me on a crowded train. I tell you they are artists. There never was such a gang."

Nikka grinned at us.

"Don't be down-hearted, you chaps. The law of averages works in these affairs as in everything. And anyhow, I've got a plan."

CHAPTER VI

We Split the Scent

Nikka's plan was simple enough. "When I was a boy and traveled with the tribe," he said, "and we wished to cross a frontier without being bothered by the customs officers or the royal foresters, we divided into two parties and struck off for our destination by two different routes."

Hugh nodded.

"I see. You split the scent," I said. "Exactly. Our trailers are experts, as I told you chaps they would be. If you will take my advice, you will adopt cypsy tactics against them. Toutou's gang are using gypsies. Very well, let us use gypsies."

"But how can we?" interrupted Hugh.

"My name still means something to my people," said Nikka. "My father's tribe will fight for me. But in the first place, this is what I suggest. Instead of sailing for Constantinople by the Messageries Maritime from Marseilles, let us take the train to Brindisi. Our trailers will expect us either to sail on the Messageries packet or else go by rail to Belgrade and connect with the Orient express for Constantinople."

"By going to Brindisi we shall surprise them, and perhaps disarrange their plans. At Brindisi we can connect with a boat for Piræna. When we board that boat they will begin to believe that they understand our plans, because at Piræna one finds frequent sailings for Constantinople. And we shall hook passage from Piræna for Constantinople, as they expect. But after we have gone aboard with our baggage, Jack and I will leave the boat by stealth."

"But what then?" demanded Hugh. "You divide forces. That makes each party half as strong as we are now."

"There'll be no harm in that," Nikka reassured him. "Our shadows will soon find out that Jack and I are not on the Constantinople boat, and they won't venture to touch you and Watkins until they have located us—which I assure you they won't be able to do."

"Why not?"

"Jack and I are going to take an other boat for Salonika, and from Salonika we shall go by train to Serres in the eastern tip of Greek Macedonia. At Serres Jack and I will disappear. We shall cease to exist. There will be two additional members in the band of Wasko Mikal, my mother's brother, and that band will be traveling to Constantinople with horses from the Dobruja to trade with officers of the Allied detachments in the city."

"And Watty and I?" questioned Hugh.

Gardener Lucky When Father Toad "Locates"

If a family of toads take up their residence in the garden it is time to feel that good luck has smilingly descended upon the place.

The toad is an insect. As a worker he does not believe in short hours, but is constantly on hand throughout the 24-hour day. He asks for nothing, only that he be left alone. And his presence means better vegetables and livelier flowers and richer grass.

One joy in life is his—that of eating. He is at it so continuously it might be regarded as almost a religion. The biggest eater among the field hands is a navio compared to him. In 25 hours the toad will consume insect food of a volume fourfold the capacity of his stomach.

Variety is his long suit, and the majority of the things the toad loves are in their state pests of every man who puts seed into the ground. With few exceptions, everything in the shape of an insect goes where all insects should go—to a stomach oblivion. With the toad if it can go into the mouth it is edible.

Peach Grower's Friends.

The ladybird beetles are perhaps the most beneficial of the several insects that act as a check on the peach tree insects. They prey upon scale insects, aphids and thrips. The two-stabbed ladybird beetle is usually prevalent on peach trees that are heavily infested with the San Jose scale. It is jet black in color and has two orange or red spots on the back. Ladybird beetles take their nourishment by sucking scale insects dry. They also assist materially in checking infestations of the rusty-brown plum aphid or other aphids. Syrupus flies, lacewing flies, tachina flies, ground beetles and some of the assassin bugs and praying mantis are other insects that are beneficial to the peach grower.

Seagull's Infamy.

Cape Cod folk are beginning to doubt that the seagull is as much of a blessing as lore would make it. The birds, regarded as friends of the sailors, ruin much property and are noted thieves of clams and fish taken from the sea.

Needless Pain!

People are often too patient with pain. Suffering when there is no need to suffer. Shopping with a head that throbs. Working though they ache all over.

And Bayer Aspirin would bring immediate relief.

The best time to take Bayer Aspirin is the moment you first feel the pain. Why postpone relief until the pain has reached its height? Why hesitate to take anything so harmless?

Read the proven directions for checking colds, easing a sore throat; relieving headaches and the pains of neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

You can always count on its quick comfort. But if pain is of frequent recurrence see a doctor as to its cause.

Wins Wife as First Prize!

If you don't think your whole life can be changed by chance, read this. It is the story of a young man who was pretty well down and out, but he figured he might win a prize if he took some advice.

"As far back as I can remember I had been a weakling," says Mr. Calvin L. Floyd of Orlando, Florida. "A headache, it seemed, was to be my life companion. I was always dizzy in the mornings. Nothing I so seemed good for me. Then I attended a health lecture in a sanatorium and the physician talked on 'faulty elimination.' That was certainly my trouble. One of the patients asked him about Nujol. He recommended it highly. I decided to try one bottle to see if there was anything in what he said about natural lubrication for the human body."

"Long before I had finished the first bottle my 'companion-headache' was gone. No more tired out feeling. I got a real kick out of life now. By the way, I almost forgot to tell you I found a new life companion, too!"

Perfectly simple, wasn't it? Mr. Floyd just learned the normal natural way to get rid of bodily poisons (we all have them) and nature did the rest. Why shouldn't you be well?

Nujol is not a medicine. It contains no drugs. It is effective, so you will be "regular as clock-work." You can buy it at all good drug stores in sealed packages for less than the price of a couple of good cigars.

Begin today. Millions have found that Nujol makes all the difference in the world. Nujol will make you feel fine and you can prove it.

Many a life changed by a message like this one.

This gentle regulation of the little system soon sets things to rights. A pure vegetable preparation that can't harm a wee infant, but brings quick comfort—even when it is colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance. And don't forsake Castoria as

VALPARAISO

Elevators Up Valparaiso's Cliffs.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

LIKE a vast jewel-studded sapphire, the long, curved shore line of Valparaiso flashes and twinkles before the traveler sailing into the roadstead after nightfall.

Straight handle and curving blade gleam for miles through the darkness, and in the distance the jewels rise higher and higher until they seem to join the stars of heaven, causing one to wonder where earth ends and sky begins.

When the morning dawns and its mists are burnt away the explanation of this magic night scene appears.

Out of the distance to the left comes the fine boulevard through Vina del Mar, Chile's summer residential dreamland; its lights formed the sapphire handle. Along the arc of the shore creeps the boulevard and the connecting downtown streets; their lights outlined the curving blade. At distances of from one to six blocks from the beach, high bluffs rise, their precipitous faces occupied by small houses, anchored perilously to the rocks, and their heights crowned with the more pretentious structures of the older residential district; the lights along the rock stairs and walkways of cliffsides and heights and in the myriad windows of abutting houses were those that seemed to slung with the stars of the night sky.

"Valpo," as the city is called down Chile way, much after our North American fashion of sometimes shortening Philadelphia into "Philly," has reminded many travelers of other cities. The late Ford Bryce, great traveler that he was, found it recalling Spanish and Italian municipalities which glitter on the cliff-bound shores of the Mediterranean, particularly resembling Messina in being very long and extremely narrow, with the cliffs leaving nothing but a few blocks between their bases and the shore. Others have likened it to Trebizond on the Black sea, or have seen bits of Constantinople and Seville in it.

Here and there steep paths and rock-hewn stairs lead up deep gullies that come down from the heights to the littoral, but with few exceptions they are too steep for night but the feet of heists and men.

Up the Cliffs by Elevators.

In the main, communication between the business district below and the older residential district above is by elevator and ascensor, of which there are a dozen or so.

The main business street runs close to the foot of the rocky bluffs, and it is rather a striking experience to be walking along with fine banks and stores on either side, and then suddenly come to a cross street which becomes a rocky stair winding its way up the cliff, or ending at an elevator which rises perpendicularly up the face of the natural wall. Toward the boundaries of the old city, there is one bifurcated ravine through which trolley cars reach to points on the heights.

The houses of the well-to-do on the bluffs are surrounded by narrow, winding streets, and one seldom sees a vehicle here. The market folk find their way around with panniered donkeys and horses.

The view of the harbor from the balconies of the cliff dwellers is a striking sight. Scores of ocean vessels ride at anchor, hundreds of small craft ply here and there, and one gets a bird's-eye view of the busy scenes around the wharves, along the waterfront streets, and in the business district.

Valparaiso's great earthquake of 1906 did little damage to the houses on the heights, and even those humbler homes, which seem to adhere to the faces of the cliffs as precariously as mud daubers' nests to a wall, went through it unscathed; but when we come down to the alluvial ground of the business district and the crowded tenements, consciousness of the great catastrophe is forced upon us; for the debris in some sections was so great that the city authorities abandoned the idea of its removal and simply piled it into the streets and laid new concrete thereon. Therefore, as one walks along, for blocks, the steps go down from the street into the houses—a mute but eloquent reminder of the extent of the damage.

Trolleys and Busses.
The transportation problem in Valparaiso is not as acute as in most cities. The heavy hauling is done on streets near the water front, and there is little use for carriages or automobiles in the business district. The streets, therefore, are almost completely given over to trolley cars and busses. Most of the conductors on the cars are women, and a serious-minded, not-too-prepossessing lot they are.

Most of the trolley cars are double-deck vehicles. The fare on top is 10 centavos, the equivalent of 1.2 cents in United States currency, and the fare below is 20 centavos. Both men and women, outside the lower classes, will stand jammed like sardines in a box below, rather than go up to the top where vacant seats are plentiful.

There are a great many busses, and one wonders how the trolley lines can live at the rate of fare the municipalities fix and with the competition they have to meet.

On the streets which parallel the main thoroughfare on the shoreward side, one sees much of native transportation. Trains of donkeys, with their slim bodies hung about with almost every conceivable article, come and go. Some are loaded with wine casks, others with sacks of flour or cement, and still others with long pieces of iron, with furniture, and even perambulators. Boards 16 to 20 feet long are along over the sides of the animals, sticking out many feet both fore and aft. The Chileans have a way of making almost anything accommodate itself to pack-saddle transportation.

Sharing the streets with the pack-saddle donkeys are the strings of carts, drawn in the fashion of the country—one horse hitched between the shafts, and at its left a second, attached to the cart by means of a breast collar and a single rope trace. This second horse carries a saddle, and the free end of the breast strap is fastened thereto. Its main duty is to carry the man who drives the cart. The single trace enables it to help out the horse in the shafts on steep grades or in heavy mud.

Lovely Vina del Mar.
The life which ebbs and flows down town and on the heights of Valparaiso may be picturesque and distinctive, but the real thrills are reserved for those who go to its Vina del Mar in summer. Playing the dual role of an Atlantic City and a fashionable suburb, this community is one vast flower garden five miles long, climbing from the seashore to the heights. Villas, bowered in roses, visterias, poppies, pansies, blooming trees, and rich shrubs; chalets standing on terraces clad in all the gay colors of Chile's floral wealth; high-walled gardens, formal in treatment but warm and beautiful in aspect—all these join with blue sky, gray rocks and ultramarine sea to make a setting for the gay summer life for which the great seaport has long been famous.

Vina del Mar at the height of the summer social season is the very incarnation of quiet, dignified smartness. The magnificently matched horses drawing the finest examples of the coach builder's art, the dogcart, and other types of horse-drawn vehicles share the boulevards with the latest European and American custom-built motor cars.

When the inland weather becomes hot and dusty, all of the socially select of Santiago and of the other cities and towns of central Chile come down and take villas or chalets here.

Horse racing is a passion with the Chileans, and the summer racing season at the Vina del Mar Jockey club brings to its tracks the best stables of the whole country.

"They Could Make Just As Good, If They Used Gold Medal 'Kitchen-tested' Flour"

Mrs. Galloway, Des Moines, Iowa

"At the Iowa State Fair last year I won twenty prizes. A first on Cloverleaf Rolls, third on Nut Bread as well as several seconds and several thirds on different cakes—all made with Gold Medal 'Kitchen-tested' Flour. Everyone raves about my rolls, cakes and breads, but I tell them they could make just as good if they used GOLD MEDAL 'Kitchen-tested' Flour. I can surely recommend it as an all-purpose flour."

So now all GOLD MEDAL Flour is 'Kitchen-tested' before it comes to you. As each batch comes through the mill it is tested by actual baking—bread, cakes, biscuits, past-

Welcomed Cooling Shower

Memories of the tortoise-shell race, renowned in fable, were revived at Northampton, Mass., in the forest fire area. Out of the blazing woods, hustled a rabbit and a turtle, almost side by side. The spray from a fire hose was switched in their direction and the two creatures appeared to welcome the cooling touch on their superheated bodies. The rabbit skipped around in circles under the shower, while the turtle, stretched out its neck eagerly into the encircling water. Later the rabbit played itself to be picked up and fondled by one of the firemen.

Peculiarity in Home of Thomas Jefferson

Monticello, historic home of Thomas Jefferson, has many oddities which excite the popular interest, says an article in Pathfinder Magazine. For example, it is a home without beds. The master slept (and died) on a cot of his own contrivance located in an opening between his study and what should have been his bedroom. He was able to jump out of it into either room. The cot was so arranged that it was raised to the ceiling during the daytime to leave a passageway between the two rooms.

There are unfounded tales that Jefferson was afraid of his life and took this means to insure safety. One basis for this, probably, is the secret room directly above his bed which has porthole-like openings in the walls, formerly covered by pictures, through which supposed bodyguards could fire down on intruders if need be.

An Ominous Meaning

Chairman Young of the federal reserve board, said in Washington about high prices:

"Well, anyhow, high prices generally mean prosperity. Low prices, though, always have an ominous and sinister meaning."

"A school teacher said to a butcher's little boy:

"Now, Jimmy, if your father had a beef weighing 400 pounds, and sold it for 8 cents a pound, what would it be worth?"

"The butcher's boy answered with a sneer:

"It wouldn't be worth a darn."

Criticism's Effect

There is no truer test of a man's qualities for permanent success than the way he takes criticism. The little-minded man can't stand it. It picks his egoism. He "crawls." He makes excuses. Then, when he finds that excuses won't take the place of results, he sulks and pouts. It never occurs to him that he might profit from the incident.—Thomas A. Edison.

You get the worth of your money when you buy a 6-cent ice cream cone for a small boy.

Men who can keep a secret make the best friends.

Sheep With Four Horns

A flock of four-horned sheep will soon be scattered through the United States. These strange animals were discovered several years ago by Dr. L. Dunn, who has resided in various parts of Central and South America, and he encountered them while crossing the country from Maracibo toward the Pacific coast, but as he had been deserted by his native guides he was unable to bring any of the animals back with him, but this time he was prepared and succeeded in catching 24. Twenty-one survived the trip to the coast and it is likely that the remainder will reach this country successfully. The ewes and rams are all supplied with four horns, two standing upright and two turned down.

Business and Industrial Review of Waukegan

Waukegan Mantel and Tile Co.

"TILE CONTRACTORS"

The Prominent and Well Known Tile Contractors of This Part of the Country with a Reputation for the Kind of Work That is Made to Last—Contracts and Estimates Given on All Floor, Wall, Fireplace and Bathroom Tiling—In Charge of Men Who are Thoroughly Conversant with Every Detail of the Business—Office Located at 329 N. Buttrick St. in Waukegan—Phone Majestic 3090.

Fireplace equipment and tile and marble establishments are necessary factors in the commercial organization of every city and in Waukegan the Waukegan Mantel & Tile Co. fills this need. No longer do homeowners want to apologize for the appearance of the bathroom or the kitchen, which until the advance of tile were difficult to keep in spic and span condition. Tile brings new beauty to both bathroom and kitchen because it is practical and enduring, too. With tile there is no cost for redecorating or repairing like there is with the plaster walls. The smooth surface is as easy to clean as a china dish. If you are building a new home or remodeling your present one you will find out that tile will be a great assistance in cutting down ultimate costs. This Waukegan firm has men who are craftsmen in the installing of tile. They know just how it should be done and you can rest assured that when you have them do your work, it will be thorough and will add greatly to the value of your home as well as to its great enjoyment. Fireplaces are important in every home nowadays — there is nothing like a fireplace to bring cheerfulness and added beauty to a living room and many people have a fireplace in at least one of their bedrooms. Fireplaces are practical — heating sufficiently before or after the furnace is down for the winter months. Constructed of either tile or marble or other materials which this firm uses they lend themselves in design, size and finish to interior decoration. To complete the fireplace properly is work for craftsmen as it must be properly encased and here again this firm is equipped for the most expert work. The Waukegan Mantel & Tile Co. are tile contractors of prominence. You will find that no job is too large for them to handle and many of the larger building contractors turn the tile work over to this well known concern. They are experts in floor, wall and fireplace tiling as well as terrazzo and bathroom tiling. They have won an enviable reputation for the quality and expert workmanship that is evident in all their tiling work. In the various branches of their business, each department is in charge of men who know their work thoroughly and they have employees who do it honestly. The Waukegan Mantel and Tile Co. has completed many contracts throughout this section. 23

GARB DOESN'T MAKE THE MAN IN RUSSIA

Sheer Necessity Forces Outlawry of Style.

Moscow.—In the Soviet capital, at least, clothes do not make the man; nor the woman, for that matter. Style is among the antiquated "bourgeois" notions thrown into disrepute by the Bolshevik revolution.

Sheer necessity—the lack of textiles and of cash—had more to do with outlawing style than did Communist principles. In the bitter years of civil strife and famine people were happy enough to have their bodies covered without bothering about the cut or color of the covering. While conditions are incomparably better, those who can afford to worry about the hang of their trousers or their skirts are still a small minority.

Many men, of course, threw off the yoke of a tailored jacket for the freedom of a peasant blouse out of revolutionary ardor; but the overwhelming majority did so because their jackets had fallen to pieces and they could not buy a new one.

The Russian Flapper. A generation of Russian girls adopted rough boyish attire and scoffed at female finery. One may be pardoned for guessing, however, that many of them were making a virtue of necessity. Certainly the first sign of easier economic conditions here, as in the rest of the world, was the better-dressed young woman. The Russian "flapper"—a boy's cap pulled rakishly over her close-cropped head and a man's overcoat over her nondescript dress—is definitely on the decline.

Between poverty and principle, however, style has fared badly enough. Anything but stark nakedness (and the rigors of Russian climate discourage that) passes muster. Moscow undoubtedly holds the world record for diversity of costume. The queerest sartorial combinations will attract not the slightest attention on Moscow streets. The most grotesque patch-work passes unnoticed.

Can't Judge by Clothes. Another result of the discarding of style is that one can no longer judge anyone's social status from his or her clothes. The fellow who hump along on the sidewalk may be the comical, sard or the humblest of his clerks—you can't tell from his apparel. Indeed, if he shows a tendency towards elegant European dress he is most likely to be the clerk.

Foreigners who have visited Moscow over a period of years agree that in general people here are enormously better dressed than a few years ago, although the standard is still far below western Europe, or even a city like Warsaw. Smartly dressed women are more in evidence and the popularity of "Moules," a pitiful little magazine devoted to the Paris fashions, may be a sign of the times.

DESCRIPTIVE ARTICLES OF THE BUSINESS MEN WHO ARE ABLY OPERATING AND CONTRIBUTING TO THE PROSPERITY OF ONE OF THE RICHEST AND MOST RAPIDLY EXPANDING AGRICULTURAL AND RESORT SECTIONS OF ILLINOIS

FINEST SECTION OF THE STATE FOR HOMESITES

SECTION SURE TO HAVE AN UNPRECEDENTED GROWTH AS THE SEAT OF A GREAT FARMING, DAIRYING AND FRUIT GROWING INDUSTRY

Agricultural Development Rapidly Progressing

The Antioch News, in this edition presents to its many readers, a special edition devoted to a more or less biographical description of prominent firms which in various lines of business are contributing to the growth and prosperity of this section. Towns and cities, and the surrounding farming country, is built no less by the character of the business interests operating in it than by the sturdy industry of its farmers, mechanics and professional people, and thus we are assured that all our readers will be actively interested in reading the story of the progress of business firms whose efforts are tending to the common prosperity and with whom they are carrying on business transaction every day.

This patronage and loyal support of all stores and industries within the community should be a matter of pride and loyalty with every citizen. These business men make possible the prosperous and contented lives of the people of this section and they should have the liberal support of all.

In reading the "Business Review" we wish to direct your special attention to the display advertising articles concerning various business professional and manufacturing concerns. They have been written by competent newspaper men who have endeavored in preparing the articles to impress upon the minds of the readers the value of the service and goods offered in the community. No man has written an article about himself, nor his business, and we wish to urge that you read these carefully.

Not one of the firms mentioned in this issue asked for the publication of the article about their business or service, though of course each article is paid for. Each and every article has been written by a competent newspaper and publicity man who has had more than ten years' experience in writing such copy. The firms represented were solicited to permit us to run the articles. They knew nothing about it until we solicited them. By reason of the understanding among printers and newspaper men they are displaying advertisements because each and every one is divided by an "advertising cut-off rule." But to us, the writers of these articles, they are news articles telling our readers of the advantages of the various firms mentioned. The fact that these firms pay for these articles does not detract one iota from the value of these items in our paper. We have been very careful to permit only reputable firms to have space in this issue and we want our readers to understand that the articles, while they are paid advertisements, are really condensed news.

By dint of hard labor and the unflinching determination to master every detail of this calling they have earned a training in the intricacies of the profession that makes them authorities on all subjects pertaining to this very difficult trade. Well versed in all of the technical theory of this business, they have merited the position that they have attained as experts, so no matter what problem you may have in this work they will evolve the solution which will operate to your best advantage.

Concerns requiring large quantities of castings often find it difficult to find a reliable source of supply where they can obtain a continuous and uninterrupted flow of good castings that are uniform in strength and at the same time soft enough to machine economically. They do a general foundry business and the superiority of their work is well known throughout this section, especially among manufacturers. They employ a number of people in their plant, many of whom are most highly skilled workmen and thus the trade has the advantage of the work of people who have spent the better part of their lives at this

They have completed large contracts in this and in other parts of the country and everywhere their work meets with greatest commendation.

In a large structure of any kind, the plastering work is an important link in the correct construction of the building. The same holds true, in fact in any building, whether large or small. The appearance of the walls and ceiling, other improve or mar the interior. An inferior plastering job, whether plain or ornamental work, cheapens the interior finishing of a structure, regardless of how well built it may be and regardless of the money that has been expended to put good steel and brick and stone into the exterior that will not perish against the elements.

Plastering work, whether plain or ornamental, to be correct and well done should be executed by men who know their business—this is as important as having a good architect and men who know the construction business. Plastering is a craft all its own. This modern concern makes use of only the superior methods and keeps constantly abreast of everything that is new—in fact, they are originators in many instances, and their vast experience makes them justly so. pleting elsewhere. Special service and comprehensive information will be given customers at all times whether the request be in person or over the telephone.

An old brick house on which the elements and time have shown their mark responds wonderfully when done in stucco, whereas paint on the brick gives a scaled and colorless surface. The old house or structure offers splendid possibilities if handled rightly—a modern touch here and there and a stucco overcoating and for a small outlay of money one has a new dwelling.

The management has mastered all intricate details concerning this business and is highly efficient. For this reason in this review of the community we wish to direct the attention of our readers to this establishment which is a valued asset to this community.
